Introduction

Human capital is undoubtedly an important asset for all organisations in today's knowledge economy. How companies attract, recruit, develop and retain quality human resources is crucial to sustain and enhance the growth of organisations. In doing so, the future prosperity of Hong Kong can also be ensured.

Work-life balance, which contributes to employees' well-being and job performance, is one critical aspect of healthy employees. Work-life balance, productivity, and profitability represent a value chain of successful operations not easily found in today's business landscape. To bring forth this reality of work-life balance, it hinges on the vision and leadership of the board of directors and senior management who do not only act as decision makers but also role models and cheerleaders.

Therefore, with the aim of promoting the importance of work-life balance, harmonious employer-employee relationships and corporate social responsibility ensuring employee wellness, the Centre for Human Resources Strategy and Development of Hong Kong Baptist University and The Hong Kong Institute of Directors consider it timely and meaningful to engage business executives, entrepreneurs, and professionals in this forum, 'Achieving Work-Life Balance: Towards a Happy and Productive Hong Kong'. Not only do we want to continue to build Hong Kong as a vibrant financial hub, we also want to make it a healthy city where talented individuals remain to work and live. That is also the reason why this event is endorsed and supported by the Rotary Club of Hong Kong South, one of the strong supporters of social responsibility.
